HTHS Students Join Council Members In Conducting Business of City

About Town And Country By TIMOTHEUS T.

Lots of Good for Youth in Case Before
Police Magistrate

LIFE UPTOWN: It was Youth Day yesterday and at the city hall everything was ready for a case in police magistrate court. Ronnie Williams of HTHS was the police magistrate for the day although Police Magistrate Vern Joyner Jr. was by his side to take care of the legal aspects.

And there was to be a young man to be brought in to face a charge of intoxication. He had been picked up by night policemen about 3 a. m. that day in the east part of town. He had been seen stumbling out of a truck in a drunken condition and police had been summoned to the area.

Time came for arraignment. Police told the young man, 26 years of age and from upstate, that there would be a number of high school students on hand when he was arraigned. They were pupils taking the part of policemen, firemen and council members.

The young man went in, and what followed would not have been better had it been rehearsed.

He gave his story. He had graduated from high school, had attended college for a while, and had got to drinking.

"If you're never drunk, don't take that first one," he said to the group. "It's no good. You think you can handle liquor all right, but you can't."

"I thought I was with friends last night, but I wasn't," he continued. "We all had started on a fishing trip and I guess I got too much. They went off and left me and the next thing I knew I had woke up in a jail cell here."

He told them more. Then he entered his plea of guilty.

The law provides that a board of education consisting of seven members shall be elected within 30 days following the April 28 election. Therefore, Gardner stated, May 26 had been designated as the day for the board of education election to be held at the Mitchellsburg grade school. The new seven-member board of education will assume its responsibilities July 1, 1956.

St. Paul Board Cuts Out Athletics, 'Frills' to Increase Teachers' Pay

ST. PAUL, MINN.: The St. Paul School Board has sacrificed high school athletics, kindergarten and a long list of educational "frills" in order to give teachers a pay boost.

The board voted unanimously Tuesday to put the city's youngsters on a strict austerity diet, starting with the next school year.

Board President William Coulter warned that the board members are not "fooling." The sweeping cuts are the only way to grant $50-a-month pay raises to teachers next year and attract urgently-needed new teachers, he said.

"We're up against it and this is a genuine attempt to solve our problem," Coulter said.

The only alternative would be a charter amendment to the city's tax levy to give the schools more money. Voters turned down such amendments last November and again last week. The Chamber of Commerce has called a special May 10 meeting to discuss submission of another amendment.

The board's decision means no high school football or basketball.

Dean Says Heavy Trucks Will Not Use New Bridge

The Harrisburg city council today studied a report that any of the heavier trucks will not be able to use the Ohio river bridge at Shawneetown because of Kentucky regulations on trucks on roads leading up to the bridge approach.

Orral Dean, heavy trucker from Harrisburg, gave the council members the news.

"The average freight line cannot use the bridge under the old weight law," Dean told council members.

Dean explained that on most Kentucky highways there is a weight limit of 42,000 pounds, that on some of them total weights of 59,040 pounds are acceptable.

But, he pointed out, the road on the other side of the bridge has no weight limit unless it is the old weight limit of around 18,000 pounds.

However, he pointed out, Kentucky's heavy trucks can come into Illinois and with Illinois permits can go up to 72,000 pounds.

Dean pointed out the benefit it would be to Harrisburg, Eldorado and other cities for regular trucking to go over the bridge at Shawneetown.

"We expect a loud wail, but what else can we do?" Coultar said. "It's a hard nut to crack."

Mrs. J. C. (Aunt Carrie) Wilson Celebrates Her 99th Birthday

The 99th birthday of Mrs. J. C. Wilson — Aunt Carrie as she is more familiarly known — was happily celebrated Saturday, when relatives gathered at the family home, 402 East Poplar street, for a pot-luck dinner party at 6 p. m.

Although surprised by the honor bestowed upon her, through the arrival of her entire family, and the ensuing festivities, she was calm and poised, as she appeared in a pretty print silk dress, with Indian turquoise combs in her hair.

Before the delicious dinner an original poem, "To My Aunt Carrie," was read by a niece, Mrs. Louis Motsdorfer.

The poem, a flash-back of memories, from childhood to adulthood, paid tribute to Aunt Carrie's patience, kindness, and love, throughout the years.

Later on, she was presented with a lovely blue spruce pine cone tree, from which hung 99 silver dollars, given her by the entire family, and other gifts. The tree was a portion of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Motsdorfer's Christmas tree, which they had brought from their home in Estes Park, Colo., as well as the silver dollars and the pine cones, which decorated the base of the tree.

Many other gifts, flowers, and cards were received from numerous friends and relatives honoring her on this extra-special occasion.

One of five children, Aunt Carrie was born 99 years ago, at Mt. Vernon, Ind. She was the daughter of German immigrants, George and Mrs. Walter Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wilson, and Mrs. Everett (Madge) Hess. A daughter, Blanche, (Mrs. Eugene Schnierle) passed on many years ago.

A grandson, Eugene Schnierle, was reared by Aunt Carrie. She is a life-long Republican, and has never missed an opportunity to vote.

Recently, she met with a slight accident, when she slipped on a rug, but her many friends will be happy to know that she is recovering, and will soon be able to "go" more, and greet them as formerly.

She attributes her longevity to the fact that she has always been interested in all types of activities, and loves everybody.

Her guests at the party were Mr. and Mrs. George Mugge, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Schnierle, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gaskins, Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Mugge, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Foster, Cairo, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Roark, Cairo, Mrs. Louise Wray, Cairo, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hess and Mrs. Pearl Thompson.

The Cairo relatives were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hess, and Mr. and Mrs. Motsdorfer.

Members of the Kiwanis club crop to be developing while the old is still producing.

The seeds for the present crop were planted during the week of Thanksgiving and those for the second will be planted about July 10.

For about a month during July and August the beds are empty and during that time the ground is sterilized with steam.

On the average the spring crop will produce about 12,000 eight-pound baskets and the fall crop about 6,000. About 98 per cent of the crop is marketed outside the area.

Ronnie Doerge, president, announced the club will hold a ladies' night meeting next Tuesday, May 8, at the Masonic temple.

He also announced sponsors were needed for the summer baseball program sponsored by the club, and teams were named from among the members to call on business houses to sponsor teams in the boy's summer program.

Julian Valette of Edwardsville was a visiting Kiwanian at last night's meeting and Olin Wunderlich of Detroit was a guest of his brother, Fred Wunderlich.

Eisenhower Leads Tribute

To Former VP Senate Chaplain Keeps Eulogy Short At Widow's Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A mourning capital said a sorrowful farewell today to its beloved "Veep" — Sen. Alben W. Barkley.

President Eisenhower led the throng of notables and plain folks at funeral services for the home-spun Kentucky orator-statesman who "went down in full armor" of the political battlefield.

Mr. Eisenhower, in a last-minute change of plans, canceled a scheduled news conference to join in the capital's last tribute to the former Democratic vice president.

The chief executive was accompanied by Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President; the entire White House legislative liaison staff, and White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty.

The Senate and House, where Barkley served for 40 years, also were represented by a large delegation of Democrats and Republicans.

Services were held in Foundry Methodist Church, with Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Senate chaplain, presiding.

"In Full Armor"

The 78-year-old former vice president, who had appeared in robust good health, died suddenly of a heart attack late Monday while performing his favorite chore—making a political speech. He was delivering the keynote address to a mock political convention at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.

Dr. Harris took note of this in his eulogy.

"... He went down in full armor with unabated power."

Harris kept his eulogy short at the request of Mrs. Barkley.

The eulogy, while simple, expressed in glowing terms the love and respect with which Barkley was held by his countrymen and by his colleagues in the Senate.

Eden Popularity Cools

A little less than a year ago, Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden won a substantial election victory in Britain. Today there is considerable doubt he could make it.

A recent public opinion poll shows that the Laborites are now in greater favor with British voters than are Sir Anthony's Conservatives. The margin is fairly narrow, but represents a marked switch from last summer.

Other figures indicate, too, that this change is directly connected with voters' reactions to the Eden government. They disapprove of his record by a margin of 4 to 3, though nearly a fourth of the electorate is undecided.

Sir Anthony's failure to make a heavy imprint on the voters' minds is one of the puzzles of the day. He had the training and experience for lofty service, not to mention guidance from the master, Sir Winston Churchill.

Yet somehow the spark needed to fuse all this into brilliant purposefulness at the summit of British life has never been struck. Sir Anthony's many friends and admirers abroad still hope it may be lit in the days ahead.

PUEBLO, Colo. — The Pueblo school board surrendered Tuesday night to teacher Theodore Colton, a part-time bartender, and ended the public clamor to keep him in the classroom.

Colton, who never wanted to make a fuss about his dismissal, said he would sign a new teaching contract and would quit his part-time job tending bar in a cocktail lounge.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
Nixon Is Smarter Than The Democrats Think; Secret
Service Investigated Murray
Chotiner's Client; It Discretely
Passed The Case On To Better Business Bureau.

WASHINGTON. — The Democrats will make a big mistake if they underestimate Dick Nixon. They figure he has about 75 percent chance of becoming president, and they're glad he's running. However, Dick doesn't miss a trick; and he knows most of the tricks in the political bag.

When he went in to see Eisenhower the other day to tell him he had "charted his course," he had already done some shrewd charting with most of the Republican state chairmen and committeemen around the country. He had telephoned them personally, asking them in his most deferential manner whether he should run again.

When the vice president of the United States calls to seek your personal advice, the natural tendency—unless icewater flows in your veins—is to tell him what he wants to know. Most Republicans leaders did.

Nixon kept a scorecard of these calls, and the results were discreetly made known to White House advisers in advance of Dick's conference with Ike last week.

That conference, previously unscheduled, was hastened by two developments:

1. Ike's statement in press conference that he had not received a reply from Nixon, which made it appear that Nixon was still out on a limb.

2. A Senate committee's sudden discovery that Nixon's attorney and most trusted adviser, Murray Chotiner, was involved in a blacklisted uniform manufacturer's effort to pull wires. What the Senate committee digs out might have influenced the GOP decision re Mr. Nixon's future, so Mr. Nixon rushed in to chart and clinch his future first.

CHOTINER'S ACTIVITIES

Here is some interesting correspondence which the Senate committee if it digs deeply enough, can bring out.

The secret service, which has the job of protecting Nixon from bodily harm; and also has the job of protecting the Great Seal and currency of the U. S. A., discovered that a company called the National Research company was using a spread eagle insignia and various misleading titles such as U. S. Credit Control Bureau, Claims Office, Disbursement Office, etc., to give the impression it was a government agency in the collection of back debts.

In some cases forms that looked somewhat like government checks were mailed out to lure information from people. The Secret Service investigated this, but finally passed the matter on to the Better Business Bureau with this letter by S. S. Chief U. S. AGENT IS COOL.

"Upon receipt of this news," continued the Washington BBB report, "I contacted a Secret Service agent for the Nixons who did not appear to be interested in any information that I might have and said he was well acquainted and knew all about Mr. Chotiner. Since he did not care to review our six-inch thick file on this outfit, I made the remark that the Democratic committee would be very much interested in it if they ever made inquiry to this office. The agent promised that he would be over this Tuesday, September 13, but to date he has not appeared."

Finally Federal Trade Commission on Dec. 23, 1955, cracked down on Mr. Chotiner's client. It issued a cease and desist order, ordering it to quit using such terms as "claims office" or "United States Credit Control Bureau."

Chotiner, realizing the political consequences, rushed out a statement that he had had "no contact with the vice president since the day he was elected, so far as concerned."

"On several occasions, the United States Secret Service has received inquiries or complaints from citizens concerning a certain printed form and questionnaire purportedly issued by the Claims Office, 100 Barr Building, Washington, D. C., the upper portion of the form has a design of a spread eagle, is dated at Washington and is numbered, and has led some persons to believe that it is a government check."

"In fact, on June 25, 1954, a man was arrested by police in Phoenix, Arizona, for attempting to negotiate one of these forms which he represented to be a government check for disability payment. Another of the forms was negotiated last February in a Phoenix department store and was cleared through the banks to the treasurer of the United States for payment.

DR. B. E. MONTGOMERY, who moved into his new building on South Main street Monday, got a unique "housewarming" that afternoon.

The doctor was in the front part of the office, Timmo was informed by a couple of his sleuths, when his assistant told him that there was a big emergency case in the back room.

Dr. Montgomery hurried to the rear of the building and there he found all kinds of "eases." Back there were Mrs. Carl Rude, Mrs. Dick Parker, Mrs. B. G. Funkhouser, Mrs. Robert G. Miley, Mrs. Kenneth C. Capel and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Towle.

Towle was bandaged about the head and was on crutches. Mrs. Rude had the measles and all the others were "disabled" or "afflicted" in some manner.

U. S. Chamber
Presidents See
Best Business Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two presidents of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce predicted today 1956 will be "our best business year ever" despite soft spots in the automobile and farm machinery industries.

Boyd Campbell, outgoing chamber president, and John S. Coleman, new chamber president, said in a joint statement to United Press that "These two soft spots don't signal to business a major downturn in the economy."

"These adjustments may in fact take some pressure off already short supplies and, for the time being, forestall serious price rises," they added.

But they said despite these soft spots the outlook is "cheery."

They pointed to estimates that the total value of goods and services turned out this year will be "over 400 billion dollars" compared to last year's record 387 billion dollars.

Folsom is Defeated by Pro-Segregation Vote in Alabama Election Bid WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic primaries in Alabama and the District of Columbia gave another nudge today to Adlai E. Stevenson's reviving hopes for the Democratic presidential nomination.

But neither primary was expected to have any major impact on the contest between Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver in their current series of presidential primaries.

In Alabama, Gov. James E. Folsom apparently was beaten by a strong pro-segregation vote in his bid for election to the Democratic National Committee.

Only the District of Columbia, which has no vote in November, provided a direct contest between Stevenson and Kefauver in the voting Tuesday. Slates of national convention delegates pledged to each were entered in the primary, the first official vote in Washington in 82 years. Six convention votes were at stake.

Official Count Slow

About 40,000 Republicans and Democrats voted in their respective primaries in this city of 900,000. The official tally was very slow and was suspended during the night until Thursday.

With about a sixth of the Democratic vote counted, pro-Stevenson delegate candidates were leading those pledged to Kefauver by an average margin of about 2 to 1.

In the GOP primary, six delegates were elected to vote for the renomination of President Eisenhower.

Alabama Democrats elected unpledged delegates who will share 26 national convention votes.

In the Alabama contest for 16 half-vote delegates at large, 12 of the leaders were considered to be either pro-Stevenson or leaning his way if the national convention

Capital Pays Sad Farewell to Barkley

Dr. Harris said Barkley was a partisan with deep conviction and yet without a blind spot that cannot see the integrity of any opponent's position . . . One who counted it as a part of his religion to help see that his country was well governed."

Found "Fun in Living"

Harris, who had known Barkley for years, commented that he "met with unbowed head and unembittered heart life's losses" and "found constant fun in living and reveled in laughter."

Knots of plain citizens, mostly women, stood beside umbrellas in a cold drizzle on the sidewalks near the church until police let them enter the church balcony.

Barkley's bronze casket rested at the communion railing beneath a large spray of red roses. Other flowers, including a cross of white carnations, lined the rail.

Outside, on the sign where Sunday services usually are announced, were the last words Barkley uttered:

"I would rather be a servant in the house of the Lord than sit in the seat of the mighty."

Hymns Form Background

From the organ loft came the soft strains of familiar hymns for 15 minutes before the service. The hymns also were played in hushed tones during the service as background accompaniment.

There was no vocal accompaniment, but Dr. Harris read the hymn, "It Singeth Low in Every Heart."

Flags in the capital flew at half-staff.

Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas ordered Navy personnel to wear mourning bands until after Barkley's funeral Thursday at Paducah, Ky. The order carried out a Navy regulation requiring the bands after the death of certain government officials and former officials.

Barkley, though beloved by his country and his party, failed to achieve his greatest political ambition — the presidency of the United States. He lost out for the Democratic nomination in 1952 when organized labor refused to support him because of his age.

But every other political honor was his. And he easily returned to the Senate from his native Kentucky after serving four years as vice president.

Buried At Paducah

Barkley's body was to be taken after the funeral by special train on his last journey home — to Paducah, Ky. — for burial services and interment Thursday. His family and an official congressional delegation will accompany the body.

The Kentucky senator's widow, the former Mrs. Jane Hadley of St. Louis whom he married in 1949, had requested no long eulogy at the service and also requested no flowers. She asked that contributions be sent instead to the Kentucky Heart Fund. But that didn't stop a flood of floral tributes.

Mrs. Frank Hines of Near Shawneetown Dies

Mrs. Mary Madaline Hines, 65, wife of Frank Hines, near Shawneetown, died Tuesday at 7:30 a.m. in the Ferrell hospital in Eldorado.

The body is at the Wright funeral home in Shawneetown. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Missionary Baptist church in Junction. Rev. Gene Allen, pastor, will officiate and burial will be in Westwood cemetery.

Mothers Who Attend U. I. Observance Reminded to Pay Dues

Saline county mothers of University of Illinois students who plan to attend the Mothers Day observance May 4, 5 and 6, at the university are reminded to pay the one dollar dues at the registration desk in the Illini Union ballroom.

Delegates who will cast 18 other national convention votes were elected by congressional districts.

Sen. Lister Hill appeared an easy winner for renomination, which is tantamount to election in Alabama. Returns from more than a third of the precincts showed his leading. Rear Adm. John Crommelin, retired, by a margin of about 2 to 1.

Mothers are also reminded that Champaign-Urbana is on daylight saving time.

Graham's Wife Subpoenaed to Testify at Trial

DENVER (UPI) — Attorneys today subpoenaed the young wife of John Gilbert Graham to testify at his airliner bomb plot murder trial.

Graham, 24, is accused of planting a homemade dynamite bomb in his mother's luggage that exploded aboard a United Air Lines DC-6B airliner last Nov. 1, killing her and 43 other persons.

One of Graham's lawyers, John Gibbons, told newsmen that Graham's pretty wife, Gloria, had fled Denver for Glenwood Springs, Colo., because "she was afraid for her life."

Gibbons said he called Mrs. Graham at Glenwood Springs Tuesday night and told her to return to Denver for a possible appearance on the witness stand.

Graham's half-sister, Mrs. Helen Hablutzel of Spenard, Alaska, denied that Mrs. Graham had left town because of fear for her life. Mrs. Hablutzel said she and Gloria America's industrial coal stock-pile is the world's largest, totaling about 70 million tons, of which more than half is owned by electric utilities.

Strikes Out Nine

Wynn wasn't exactly standing around counting his change, either. He pitched brilliantly in striking out nine men, walking only one and racking up his third straight triumph.

The Baltimore Orioles knocked the Chicago White Sox out of first place in the American League by beating them, 3-2, in 11 innings. Four errors caused Chicago's downfall and it was the last one, a wild throw by relief pitcher Dixie Howell in the 11th, that allowed Bob Boyd to score from second base with the winning run.

The Yankees took over first place with a 9-2 victory over the Tigers as Mickey Mantle and Hank Bauer hit home runs and Whitey Ford posted his third straight complete game victory with a seven-hitter. Steve Gromek started for Detroit but departed in the fifth after giving up seven runs on as many hits.

A perfect squeeze bunt by Joe DeMaestri brought in the winning run in the eighth inning for the Athletics in a 3-2 triumph over the Red Sox. Lou Kretlow hurled a seven-hitter in gaining the decision over Bob Porterfield.

Milwaukee moved atop the National league with a 6-4 victory over Philadelphia. Reliever Dave Jolly pitched his way out of a bases-loaded, none out situation in the seventh inning and kept the Phillies throttled after that to notch the victory.

Redlegs in Streak

The Cincinnati Redlegs stretched their winning streak to five games in beating the Brooklyn Dodgers, 3-1, behind Johnny Klippstein's six-hit pitching. Klippstein, who defeated the Dodgers four times last year, was in frequent hot water because of seven walks but bore down and pitched his way out of the jams.

Those surprising Pirates won their third straight game, beating the Cardinals, 4-2, even though Manager Bobby Bragan had to employ three pitchers in the ninth instead of the 180-yard distance. The 660-yard run supplants the 880-yard run on the program.

Ron Jones of Moline won the 44½ points and last year Charles Hamilton of Herrin was the winner with 8,366 points.

Paul Judson was the only University of Illinois basketball player selected in the draft conducted by members of the National Basketball Association, being selected by Syracuse. The St. Louis Hawks came up with several Big Ten stars, including Robin Freeman, Ohio State; Julius McCoy, Michigan State; Wally Choice, Indiana.

There will be lots of records set at McLeansboro Saturday afternoon when the Southern Illinois conference track meet is held. In fact, every winning performance will be a record as this will be the first meet held by the conference, organized only a few months ago.

Eldorado, Johnston City, Metropolis and McLeansboro compose the loop.

Among the top performers will be Gateley of McLeansboro who has been clocked in the 100-yard dash at 10.2 and has cleared the bar in the high jump at 6 feet.

Jansco of Johnston City is southern Illinois' best low hurdler, having been timed at 20.7. He also is a fine 100 dash man. JC also has a top relay team.

Eldorado's outstanding performer is Lovellette, a shot and discuss standout. Eldorado also has a fine dasher in Dempsey and a bevy of distance runners, including Watson, Woods, Leonard and Frank Willis.

Ben Jones' Son To Train Calumet Farm Entries

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Ben Jones of Calumet Farm let his Kentucky Derby training record of six winners stand as a target for others to shoot at today when he announced that Jiminy Jones, his son, would train Fabius and Pintor Lea on Derby day.

With Fabius and Pintor Lea rounding into top form for Saturday's running of the Derby, the elder Jones had a good chance to score another. But if either colt makes good for the famed Devil Red and Blue silks of Calumet, it will be the first win for son Jiminy rather than the seventh for father Ben.

Calumet Farm's chances took a brighter turn all around Tuesday when Fabius outran a field of 10 Kentucky Derby candidates to win the 19th running of the Derby Trial. And in a morning workout, Pintor Lea breezed five furlongs in 1:02, pulling up without any sign of soreness in the knee he recently wrenched.

Deliverymen Call Strike in Three Southern Illinois Cities

MARION, Ill. — Deliverymen for retail furniture stores in three southern Illinois cities called a strike for higher wages today.

The members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters walked out at stores in Marion, Herrin and Carterville. Negotiations on a new contract broke down in Herrin Monday night and the union set up picket lines today. The union asked $65 a week for a 40-hour week. Workers receive $60 for a 42-hour week.

The business agent for the union, Sam Treffs of West Frankfort, could not be reached for comment.

Death Count in Texas Floods Rises to Six

By United Press
Flash floods swept a 14-year-old boy to his death in Texas Tuesday night and two busloads of school children narrowly escaped the same fate.

The death count rose to six in three nights of flooding rains and tornadoes in Texas. More of the same was expected today. Drenching rain and high winds also swept other southern states.

The heavy rains fell from Texas through Louisiana eastward into the Tennessee Valley and South Atlantic states. Rain, hail, and 50-mile-per-hour winds whipped Charleston, S. C., and another storm knocked out power and raised floodwaters in Columbia, S. C.

The worst storms hit Texas, where creeks and rivers went on a rampage in the state's western and central portions.

Swep Down Creek

Near Lometa Tuesday night, a school bus stalled and a wall of water hit the teacher-bus driver and six children as they tried to get to high ground.

Billy Ed Whittenberg, 14, and a girl were swept down a creek. Both managed to grab hold of a tree, but a floating log knocked the boy downstream. His body was found in a tree fork hours later.

The teacher-driver, 21-year-old Thomas Knox, rescued the girl and brought all five children to safety.

Another heroic rescue saved eight children and a bus driver near Abbott.

Gushing waters swept their school bus into a flooded pasture. Crump Sides anchored himself to a telephone pole with a rope and then waded 50 feet through shoulder-deep water to bring out the children and driver.

Two tornadoes touched ground in Texas, causing minor damage and heavy rains claimed at least two more victims in the Midwest.

At Cedar Rapids, Iowa, two workers died when a rain-soaked sewer ditch collapsed. A 12-year-old Chicago girl was feared to have drowned when she guided her rented horse into the rain-swollen Des Plaines River.

Roy Reynolds will officiate and burial will be in the Lockwood cemetery near Rudement.

She was the last survivor of the immediate family.

Local Students Celebrate Elks' National Youth Day

HTHS Groups Take Over City Gov't; Free Movie for Junior High Students

Members of the HTHS student body who took over the Harrisburg city government for a day yesterday are shown in the pictures on this page as they went through their governmental duties for the day. The program was a part of Elks National Youth Day, celebrated every May 1st, and Harrisburg lodge No. 1058 was the sponsor of the local celebration.

Seventh and eighth grade students from the Junior high school and Dorrisville school were invited to a movie, "The Long Gray Line," at the Grand theatre yesterday morning, and the film, and remarks by State Senator Glen O. Jones, were both thoroughly enjoyed. In the upper right hand corner the line can be seen forming in front of the Grand, and in the picture immediately below this column, Sen. Jones is shown during his remarks, and Exalted Ruler Vern Joyner Jr. is shown leading the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Exalted Ruler Joyner thanked all the city officials and the faculty of HTHS for helping to make this observance of National Youth Day one that will be long remembered, by council members as well as students.

Sen. Smathers Seeks Law To Require Only Jurists Named to Supreme Court

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress has ample authority to bar from appointment to the Supreme Court any but trained and experienced jurists. As of now it is not even necessary to be a lawyer to qualify for the court.

Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) wants a law passed to change that. Although he did not say so, Smathers evidently feels that the present court offended the judicial proprieties in its recent rulings on racial integration. The rulings appear to Smathers to be more in the area of legislation or policymaking than in judicial determination.

His remedy would be a requirement that five years on a lower federal bench or on the bench of a state supreme court would be a qualification for membership on the U. S. Supreme Court.

Congress could do that, or require that all justices be red-haired, for that matter. The Constitution merely said there should be one "Supreme Court" and left to Congress its composition. Congress has been tinkering with the court ever since it was created in 1789. By 1896 the number of associate justices had been changed six times.

Two Had Experience

Of present court members, Associate Justices John M. Harlan and Sherman Minton had previous experience on a federal bench. Associate Justice Hugo L. Black racked up 18 months, in his youth, as a county judge in Alabama. The others, including Chief Justice Earl Warren, were lawyers but

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.
Written for NEA Service

What do you see in other people? Do you see the good that is in them or do you imagine that they are crooks and criminals?

Do you believe that they are selfish to the point of not caring about other people, except as they may use others for their own benefit?

Some people believe others to be guilty until they are proved innocent. That is a pretty un-American idea. In this country we protect the innocent by law. Although this statute is a written law used in the courts, it should also be a moral law inscribed on the hearts of men and women.

A really friendly person looks about him and sees friends who are kindly and loving. If we expect people to love us, we shall likely receive a goodly measure of love.

What we see in people will probably come forth. There is good and bad in all of us. That which develops is what others expect of us.

Someone once said that "A man is as he thinks." And a man thinks as he is motivated by himself and others. Let us give love and friendship and expect the same of others.

The mere fact of believing in children and in people will make the world a whole lot better. Let us not look for crooks all around us.

never had been on the gavel side of a judicial bench until they joined the high court.

Smathers' proposed law would hamper politicking in Supreme Court appointments. President Truman, for example, once discovered that the best fitted man for an existing Supreme Court vacancy was a Republican U. S. senator from Ohio.

The Democratic governor of Ohio promptly filled the ensuing Senate vacancy with a Democrat, reducing the Republican Senate count by one and increasing the Democratic count likewise. President Wilson promoted one of his cabinet to the Supreme Court early in his first term. The story was that the promoted gentleman was ill-tempered and unhandy around the cabinet table.

Direct Election Provided

Smathers' proposed reform probably would be about as effective with the court as the 17th Amendment to the Constitution was effective with the Senate. That Amendment (1912) provided for direct election of senators. It required state legislatures of that duty, the idea being that many legislatures corruptly sold the seats or stupidly sent to the Senate blow-hards and second raters.

The amendment dealt well with corruption, but the average of noisy second raters on Capitol Hill does not change much. It would be very difficult to prove that the 17th Amendment increased at all the average of Senate intelligence or public service. It may, even, have diminished both.

Previous judicial experience would not assure good Supreme Court performance. Lack of it would not forbid a good job. The late Louis D. Brandeis and Harlan Fiske Stone for example, had no judicial experience when named to the Supreme Court.

Smathers' argument, however, is that men who would invade the areas of policy-making or legislation should be elected officials for limited terms, not life-time appointees.

Illinois Teamsters, Contractors Reach Agreement

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Negotiations have reached a tentative wage agreement between Illinois teamsters and contractors, a contractors' spokesman said today.

Robert Young, acting executive secretary of the Associated General Contractors of Illinois, said the agreement would be submitted later this week to the contractors' labor relations committee and the full negotiating committee of the Illinois Conference of Teamsters for ratification.

Young would not disclose terms of the tentative agreement.

The teamsters' contract, covering an estimated 30,000 union members on highway construction projects in 90 Illinois counties, expired March 31. Repeated extensions of the contract during negotiations have averted a strike by the union members.

LOVE AND MARRIAGE GO TOGETHER in real life, too, for song writer Sammy Cahn and family.

He Wrote 'Love and Marriage' and Lives It

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A

tenor who makes his living singing at weddings reports that next to "I Love You Truly" and "Oh, Promise Me," the most requests he gets these days are for "Love and Marriage." Which is perfectly O.K. with Sammy Cahn, the lyricist, who calls the hit song "a labor of love—and marriage."

In show business, they generally call Sammy Cahn's marriage one of the best. Last September, Sammy and Gloria celebrated their tenth anniversary in Los Angeles. They have two children — Steven, 7, and Laurie, 5.

"Whatever I am," Sammy says, "I owe it to my love and my marriage. It sounds corny, but I mean it. I've never been more successful, I've never been happier, I've never been more in love."

Sammy's friends—and there are many of these—say he speaks the truth. This is the prototype of the happily married man. But it wasn't always thus.

"He was a bum before he got married," one friend says. He didn't mean Sammy was a panhandler—he's been a successful songwriter since he was 24. But he meant that Sammy was a romantic bum. He went out with hundreds of girls. He played the field like it was a career.

Sammy admits it. "I was the king of the bachelors," he says.

And then he met Gloria Delsol. She was (and still is) very beautiful. She was a Goldwyn Girl. Once she made a list of the Ten Most Beautiful Girls in the World. She was young and there seemed to be a simmering career awaiting her. But what she wanted was love and marriage.

Sammy and Gloria fell in love. It was quick and easy. But he couldn't get up the nerve to propose. He confided his problem to his friends, Frank Sinatra and his then-wife, Nancy. At a party one night, Nancy Sinatra handed Sammy a note that read simply, "Now." And Sammy took the cue and proposed and Gloria accepted.

Prominently displayed in the Cahns' home is the note. "If anything ever happened to Gloria," a friend has said, "Sammy would become a basket case." The Cahns do not think they are unusual.

"It's just that the gruesome side of Hollywood makes the headlines," Sammy says. "We know many happy couples, besides ourselves."

He thinks his personal happiness is reflected in his work.

"A person's environment is always in his sub-conscious," he thinks. "I imagine many of my songs are reflections of my personal life."

Because of that, Sammy has never specifically sat down to write a song for her. The closest is a song that never became a big hit—"It's You Or No One"—which was overshadowed in the movie for which it was written by "It's Magic."

But that one song is the nearest to an "our song" they have. It is, incidentally, Sammy's favorite, and his compositions number 40 Hit Parade numbers like "Until the Real Thing Comes Along," "Let It Snow, Let It Snow," "Walk Alone," "Be My Love," "Because You're Mine," "Three Coins In The Fountain," "Teach Me Tonight," and the current "The Tender Trap."

At the moment, though "Love and Marriage" is his favorite, "It's close to my heart," Sammy says, "not because it's a hit, but because it says what I believe about my own love and marriage."

SALEM, Ore. — (UPI) — A brother and sister who hadn't seen each other for more than half a century met here recently.

"I just wouldn't have recognized her," Cecil Coleman of Yelm, Wash., said after he embraced his sister, Mrs. Katie Armitage, 72, of Kanorado, Kan., at the Salem home of her daughter, Mrs. Ethel Rolow.

In 1900, young Katie Armitage bid farewell to her brother, Cecil, in Stillwater, Okla., and left by train with her husband and infant to live in Colorado.

Cecil later moved to Yelm, where he was a logger for many years before retiring. Both said through the years they had exchanged occasional letters, but the Salem meeting was the first since 1900.

State Payroll Shows Increase

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois payroll for January increased by 3,491 persons and $1,417,275 over that for January, 1955. State Auditor Orville E. Hodge reported today.

Hodge said employees of state code departments increased by 9 per cent; constitutional officers, 9 per cent; major commissions, 3 per cent, and miscellaneous agencies, 5.5 per cent.

Employees of the state's educational institutions increased 21 per cent, from 11,542 employees with a payroll of $3,235,230 in January, 1955, to 13,737 employees and a $4,162,990 payroll last January.

The total state payroll for January, 1956, included 49,433 persons and $14,535,187. It increased by 375 persons and $167,119 over December, 1955. However, the monthly change reflected use of 114 National Guardsmen for highway traffic duty over the New Year's Day weekend, Hodge said.

Mike took one of his pistols and shoved it into Barba-Leonidas' hamlike hand as a gift. It was the same pistol that had been earmarked for his death by Mosley outside of Kalamai. Once again Mike tried to offer money, but the giant proudly refused.

Mike lifted the sack to his back and nodded to Lisa. They walked from the cottage and climbed aboard a donkey cart. In a moment it nudged down a path away from Kaloghrani.

Mike turned around and looked back to the hills. He saw the colossal form of Barba-Leonidas outlined against the sky, and Eleftheria stood at his side. He smiled sadly. "Forgive the hearts and flowers, but they are my friends."

"I understand," Lisa answered in perfect English.

At nightfall the donkey cart pulled into the town of Dadi.

For Mike, it was as though he was coming into another age. He was intrigued by the red-tile roofs, by the sight of an automobile and a sidewalk.

The donkey driver was dismissed and they set off for the main square. Lisa led Mike to a bakery run by a hefty character identified as Baziadis.

A room in the rear of the bakery turned out to be an arsenal. It had a cache of everything from pistols to homemade bombs and machine guns. A second man, Rigas, a photographer, locked himself in with them and went to work.

First, Mike was given a suit of second-hand city clothes. Rigas photographed him and then presented him with forged travel papers and a card which bore the name: Vassilios Papadopoulos. Then Rigas produced train tickets and money and went over instructions with Lisa.

Baziadis, the bakery owner, came in after his night's baking chores were over, and the four of them joined in a silent meal.

It was two in the morning when everything was declared in order and Rigas and Baziadis left.

Lisa and Mike stretched out on cots at opposite ends of the room. A small bare light bulb burned all night.

About seven o'clock, Baziadis came and opened the bakery and they departed through a rear door. The silence between them continued on the short walk through the square to the railroad depot.

When Mike saw the train pulling in, all his apprehensions took possession of him. As the train neared, it began to take on the shape of a coffin. He again felt for the pistol in his belt, but this time it gave him little comfort.

Lisa held his arm. They walked through the depot shed onto the platform. The wheels ground to a halt. The train hissed. Travellers scurried off and on to calls by the station master.

The pair edged toward a car. Mike halted abruptly.

He saw a conductor standing beside a car exchange glances with Lisa and nod. Lisa nodded back in recognition.

It was a car of wooden benches, half-filled with city people. All of them were wailing a unanimous chorus of troubles. He scanned the car for a sign of a hostile or alien face. No one gave them a second glance as they found a double seat.

Mike sat beside a window and tried it out. It worked smoothly.

Lisa avoided conversation and even looking at Mike. But she could feel his tension. His hands had been wringing wet when she led him onto the train. His nervousness could well upset her whole plan.

She looked past Mike out of the window. Scenery flitted by.

Mike managed to relax a trifle. He took some pipe tobacco and lit up. It smelled good to Lisa. Her father had smoked a pipe of the same sharp-smelling blend and its scent drifted her back into memories of happier days.

"You look tired," he said. "Why don't you stretch out over the seat and take a nap?"

Lisa smiled weakly. It was the first time Mike had seen that smile. It was warm and wonderful. She glanced at her watch, then curled up and put her head in his lap, her legs tucked under him. At first she was stiff and aware of him, then she eased and began to doze. In several moments the weariness lulled her to sleep.

Three men stood over them. Mike's eyes opened. He stared at them in fright. He felt a nervous twitch start from the corner of his eye.

One of the men was the conductor, the same one who had exchanged signals with Lisa at the depot.

Next to him, in the crowded aisle, stood two armed men in the uniforms of Italian carabinieri. He felt Lisa stir and knew she was awake but feigning sleep.

"Identification!" one Italian shouted. Mike began to fumble through his pockets with trembling hands. Lisa came awake quickly.

Her hand reached up to Mike's inside pocket and took out his travel card. She sat up, stretched, yawned and touched his disheveled hair.

"Vassili, you are always misplacing things. I told you to let me hold it," she said, patting Mike's cheek and hugging him softly. She handed the card to the Italian. "Oh, to be married to a teacher at the university! His head is always in the clouds."

Lisa smiled at them, the type of smile a woman uses to lure a man. The Italian was all business. He was not lured.

"Vassili," she said, "give the gentlemen our tickets. Do not keep them waiting."

Old Age Ease Calls For Some Planning

LANSING, Mich. — (AP) — Old at 50? Or young at 70? It's a matter of health of mind, body and spirit, according to Dr. Albert E. Heustis, Michigan's health commissioner.

Most people dream of an active and exciting life for their later years. That's the time for doing what they've always wanted to do but never had the time.

The trouble is, they only dream, said Dr. Heustis.

"Few are willing to plan—either for themselves or for others, and too often just wishfully assume that this delightful picture will somehow materialize," the commission stated.

The responsibility for reversing this trend rests only with the professional health and welfare workers, but with the community and the family itself, Dr. Heustis said, adding:

"One of the first goals should be to get out from under the cloud of hopelessness which still hangs so heavily over the idea of aging. We need to tell ourselves that something can be done to add living to the added years of life; then we need to go ahead with vigor to do something about it."

Dr. Heustis urged older people to take advantage of the advances medical science has made in preventing or curbing many forms of heart disease and cancer, two of the leading killers and cripplers.

The commissioner also pleaded for more decisive action in preventing disabilities from chronic diseases ones that could be cured diseases, ones that could lead to fuller living in the later years, he concluded.

DECATUR, Ill. — The Decatur City Council Monday approved an ordinance calling for fluoridation of the city water supply.
